During his time as a scouter, Scott has also endeavored to help his Council, District, and other units. He has provided input to council-level Cub Scout program planning; Typed up random notes and how-to blueprints for the use of other leaders and Assisted the Catalina Council Marketing and Membership Committee

Outside of scouting, Scott has worked for years as a Human Resources professional. What he enjoys most about that work is when he can really help someone solve a problem. Even as Scott prepares to conclude his time as a Cubmaster and a Cub-level scouter, he taken steps towards what is next. He has begun to develop himself for a future leading at the Scouts BSA troop level. He has been an untitled leader of numerous games for zoom meetings, taken troop-level leadership trainings and registered as a merit badge counselor.

Scott's days specific to Pack 747 may be coming to an end, but he has years as a scouter ahead of him.
